

Community Mental Health Services

If an individual meets the Department's eligibility requirements as outlined in s. 394.674, F.S., that individual may receive services from the local community mental health provider. Such programs might include (if available):

Clubhouse (a psycho-social rehabilitation program geared towards employment and recovery), Supported Employment programs, drop-in centers, and other psycho-social rehab offerings (educational and social programs).

In addition, if the person is eligible for specific treatment services, community mental health centers can offer psychiatry and medication services, case management, intensive case management, or Assertive Community Treatment. A full description of services offered can be found at the DCF website:
